DESCRIPTION: Achieve Now is a research-based curriculum that incorporates theories and practices from cognitive psychology, including strategies from mastery learning and teaching known to lend support to students' acquisition of core skills and concepts at an accelerated rate. PLATO learning programs combine learning activities that target individual research-based components with an engaging, multi-media presentation that is interactive and intrinsically rewarding for students as they work toward mastery. At intake, existing student test data is examined or an assessment is administered to create an individual learning path that forms the basis of the Student Tutorial Plan and outlines instructional objectives and progress assessments. Formal progress reports are prepared and submitted every two weeks to district and school officials, and informal reports are sent on a more frequent basis. Tutors and parents will communicate by phone or in writing about student progress.
